

Clock Inspector Skit

One camper is the Clock Inspector with a German accent. (When s/he talks s/he needs to face the audience.)

Two campers are the Clock Keepers. Each one can have a different accent as long as they are very understandable.

The rest are lined up in a row as clocks of different sizes and shapes. When each says "tick, tock, tick tock etc." they can do it with different speeds, pitch etc.

Inspector: Eat ees time to inshpect your claucks. (It is time to inspect your clocks.)

Keepers: OK, right this way please.
(They walk up to first clock in line and one of the keepers winds it up with big dramatic motions.)

Clock #1: Tick Tock Tick Tock Tick Tock.

Inspector: (making mark in his inspection sheet) Velly goot. (Very good!)
(they walk up to next clock in line and the keeper winds it up.)

Clock #2: Tick Tock Tick Tock Tick Tock.

Inspector: (making mark in his inspection sheet) Velly goot.
(they walk up to next clock in line and the keeper winds it up.)

Continue for all the clocks except last one.)

(The keeper winds up the last clock.)

Last Clock: Tick ____ Tick ____ Tick

Inspector: (grabs clock and begins to haul it away) (Say this very slowly into a microphone with an evil look on your face! Draw out the word "Tock.")

Vee haf vays of making you . . . Tock!
