

Got Duck Food? Skit

Set up a table (or bench to look like a table) with several people behind it looking like they are working behind a counter in a store.

A flock of waddling and quacking ducks who are flapping their wings comes to the door of the store. They push open the door and go into the store quacking away as they waddle.

The people behind the table say, "Welcome to our store!"

One of the ducks asks, "Do you have any duck food?" Others echo, "We need duck food." "Yummy – quack – duck food!"

The store owners answer, "No, we don't carry duck food," and the ducks waddle away disappointed.

A person says, "The next day exactly 24 hours later . . .".

The ducks waddle in again quacking and flapping wings and ask the store owners if they have any duck food.

The store owners angrily yell, "NO, we told you yesterday that we don't sell duck food! If you come back again, we'll nail your beaks to our counter!"

Needless to say, the ducks waddle away very fast with high nervous quacking and squawking.

A person says, "The next day exactly 24 hours later . . .".

The ducks slowly peek around corners, trees, and anything that can hide him. (They can also commando crawl to the counter and peek over the top.)

Then a duck jumps to the counter and yells, "Do you have any nails?"

The store owners reply, "No."

The ducks say, "Well, good! Then, do you have any duck food?"

The owners scream and chase the ducks!

Got Duck Food? Skit

Next two other people come in and have a conversation with the two owners about the owners going on vacation and that these two new people will be running the store in their places. The owners tell them to watch out for some obnoxious ducks!

A person says, "The next day exactly 24 hours later . . .".

(The two workers are standing behind the counter.)

The ducks waddle in again quacking and flapping wings and ask the store workers if they have any duck food.

Workers: "No this is a hardware store. We don't sell duck food."

The ducks waddle out quacking as though they are griping.

A person says, "The next day exactly 24 hours later . . .".

The ducks waddle in again quacking and flapping wings and ask the store workers if they have any duck food.

Workers: No, this is a hhhhhhaaaaarrrrrrrrdddddwwwwwwaaaaarrrrreeee store. We... don't...sell...duck...food. If you ask again we're going to staple your feet to the floor!!!!

A person says, "The next day exactly 24 hours later . . .".

The ducks slowly peek around corners, trees, and anything that can hide him. (They can also commando crawl to the counter and peek over the top.)

Then a duck jumps to the counter and yells, "Do you have any staples?"

The store owners reply, "No."

The ducks ask, "Well then, do you have any duck food?"

The people scream and chase the ducks!