

Mosquito Attack Skit Week #2

[Two groups of kids walk onto stage, pretending to be hikers.]

“What a tiring and long day! I just want to go to sleep!!”

Group one: “Here’s a good spot to pitch our tents!”

Group two: [Pretends to look in their packs] “Oh, no! We forgot our tents!”

Group one: “Well, guess you have to sleep on the ground. Good night!”

[Both groups lie down and pretend to go to sleep. From off-stage come the MOSQUITOES, buzzing loudly, who proceed to go to group two and sting them. Group two wake up in a fit hitting themselves like swatting mosquitoes.]

Group two: “AAUGH! These mosquitoes are terrible! Hey, switch places with us!”

Group one: “No! They’re probably gone now. Go back to sleep!”

[Both groups lie down and pretend to go to sleep again. From off-stage come the MOSQUITOES, who proceed to go to group two and sting them. Group two wake up in a fit again hitting themselves again like swatting mosquitoes.]

Group two: “Aaugh! These mosquitoes are eating us alive! Please give us a turn in the tent!”

Group one: “Oh, all right! If it’ll get you all to be quiet to let us sleep in peace, let’s switch!”

[Groups one and two switch places and lie down to sleep. The MOSQUITOES come buzzing back on-stage and make their way towards group one, who is now sleeping where group two had been. As they get close, one MOSQUITO stops all the others.]

MOSQUITO: “Wait, wait, wait! We already got this group the last two times! Let’s the get the other group instead!”

[MOSQUITOES then proceed to attack group two, thinking that they were group one.]