

The Scab

Camper 1 should have a decent sized piece of a greenish/yellow fruit roll-up or something like that laying on their skin - "the scab".

Campers 2, 3, 4 etc. should be sitting near to Camper 1 - repeatedly pointing to scab and whispering/poking at it to camper 1.

The other campers should increase the frequency and/or urgency of their interest/poking/eyeing of the "scab" without being mean to the great distress and aggravation of Camper 1 - to the point of Camper #1 having to slap other Camper's hands back several times and being a great distraction to the overall event.

Another camper or counselor should be doing normal activities in front of the group - explaining the day's events or whatever made up purpose the group has been called together to hear.

Because of the distraction of Camper 1 and the other campers, the Camp Leader explains to everyone that Camper 1 fell down and skinned up his/her leg/arm/face (wherever the "scab" is located) - make the story elaborate and embarrassing to add drama.

Just as the Camp Leader finishes explaining how the scab came to be....one of the other campers should reach in, pluck off the "scab" and eat it.....shock, terror, joy, gasps will ensue.

The person grabbing and eating the "scab" should do it slowly turning to the audience to clearly put it in his/her mouth and show a delighted expression on his/her face while the others get sick and run off!
