

Banana/Bandana skit for Staff#2

You need two actors for this.

Also, you will need a bandana, a drop cloth, and a banana.

Open the scene by having one actor on each side of the stage kinda turned away from one another.

JOE: (seated on a drop cloth playing with action figures and a banana) Oh no Spider Man, look, it's the banana of death! He has come to destroy us. Aaauuuugggghhhh! (continue to banter back and forth between the heroes and the evil banana)

RENE: (is happily playing with a bandana enjoying folding it) Hey, I should call Joe! (she picks up her cell phone and pretends to call Joe by punching numbers and making a ringing noise)

JOE: (picks up his cell phone) Yo...Hello!

RENE: It's Rene. Where were you today?

JOE: I was sick.

RENE: Sick?! Yeah right. What did you have?

JOE: Um...I...Uhhh...I had the intentional flu . . .

RENE: Whatever! You missed some really fun stuff in school today.

JOE: Oh yeah? Like what?

RENE: We learned how to fold bandanas.

JOE: Bananas!?! (strangely looking at the banana he is playing with) How do you do that?

RENE: Well, first you have to have and bandana.

Banana/Bandana skit for Staff#2

JOE: I actually have one right here! Go ahead and tell me. (Make sure he is seated on the drop cloth to contain the mess.)

RENE: Ok, but first let me put you on speaker phone (press a button and then lay the phone down) You start by taking the bandana and making it nice and flat.

JOE: Um...ok. (he tries his best to flatten the banana by pulling it out of its peel and using his hands to smack it flat)

RENE: Ok, now you fold it from one corner to the next so that it looks like a triangle.

JOE: Alright....ummm...but...(he folds the banana as best he can)

RENE: Now you put it on your forehead with the point of the triangle towards the back of your head.

JOE: (look as if he is scared) Are you sure about this?

RENE: Yes, yes. Now tie a knot in the back, behind your neck. That's it! Isn't it fantastic!!

JOE: (after he puts the banana on his head he becomes sorely UNDERimpressed) So let me get this straight, all you learned how to do in school today was tie a stupid banana around your neck? (make sure to emphasize the word banana)

RENE: (not understanding) Banana? I didn't say banana, I said bandana! (emphasize the word bandana)

JOE: (embarrassed) Uh....(making a static-y noise)...you're breaking up....I'm losing you...(runs off the stage)

RENE: (chuckling) Banana. What an idiot! (walking off stage) Where did he get that idea from?