

Greasy Spoon Restaurant Skit

A number of campers enter a greasy spoon type of restaurant that has a waiter and a grill cook with a stained apron.

A waiter says that all they have is soup and a hot dog. The first camper says s/he will take the soup and the other campers says each wants the same.

The cook tells one half of the campers that if they want the soup the others have to have the hot dogs.

The second group of campers agree and ask to have mustard put on the hot dogs and the waiters leave.

One of the campers asks if the cook steals, because s/he thought s/he heard he did.

Another camper says the cook will steal your shirt off your back if he could.

Everyone gets their order. As the waiter is bringing the silverware s/he drops the silverware and then wipes them off with his/her dirty apron.

The second group tells the cook that they wanted mustard on their hot dogs.

The cook squeezes mustard off his apron onto the hot dogs.

A camper says that there is a fly in his soup. The cook retrieves the fly out of the soup, squeezing it, telling the fly to spit it all back.

The one who asked if the cook steals acts disgusted, makes a comment and begins to walk out without his pants. His pants have been stolen. (Note: make sure that this person is not indecent! This person should have on some kind of outside shorts and grabs a supposed large napkin to cover himself or herself.)