

Moses and the Outhouse Staff Skit

Moses: I realize that you all are young and daring but what one of you did earlier today was terrible. I am only going to ask once, Which one of you pushed the OWARII of the cliff over there?

1: Not me!

2: I didn't!

3: Don't look at me!

4. You aren't thinkin' I could do something like that are you!

Moses: Let me tell you all about a story about our great first president, George Washington. Well, His father had a prize cherry tree in his front yard. This tree was magnificent! It bloomed with thousands of cherries every season. One day, when George Washington's father came home, his prize cherry tree was chopped down.

1,2,3,4: HUUUHH!

Leader: Yes. When George Washington's father asked George Washington "Son, did you chop down my prize cherry tree?" Well, George Washington being as honest as he was looked his father straight in the eye and said, "Yes father, I chopped down your cherry tree."

And George Washington's father said, "Son, because you told me the truth, I am gonna pick all the cherries of that tree and make a big ole cherry pie for you son."

1,2,3 & 4: WOOOOOW!

Moses and the Outhouse Staff Skit

Leader: Now, I'm just gonna ask you one more time. Which one of you pushed the OWARII over the cliff?

1: I didn't.

2: Nope.

3: No way!

4: [Sheepishly] It was me!

Moses [Enraged, grabs 4 but the shirt collar] That's it! Come on were callin' your parents! You're goin' home!

4: But George Washington got a cherry pie for tellin' the truth!

Moses: (Say this into a microphone very slowly and loudly while looking at the audience.)

George Washington's father wasn't in the cherry tree when George Washington cut it down . . . if you know what I mean!
